The Transparency International Secretariat (TI-S) in Berlin is seeking video animators to help us explain our anticorruption work so that it is widely understood by the general public. We also produce animations to support the launch of many of our flagship products such as the Corruption Perceptions Index or the Global Corruption Barometer series. The typical channels for distribution are our social media channels and our website.

Tasks would typically include:

- Communicate products and concepts through clean and original video animations. E.g.: the next Corruption Perceptions Index, how corruption affects climate change...
- Educate the general public about different topics related to fighting corruption globally
- Make complex concepts or projects easy to understand with animations
- Be understandable in a number of different cultural contexts

TI-S will retain sole intellectual property rights with respect to all distribution, dissemination, and publication of the deliverables.
